

Dear colleagues:

Since the College of Family Physicians of Canada (CFPC)'s fall 2020 examinations will consist only of a written component, and given the uncertainty over what social distancing requirements may be at that time, the CFPC has worked closely with Prometric, our computerized examination service provider, to explore options for delivering our examinations as safely, efficiently, and effectively as possible.

We are pleased to inform you that, for those who wish, we have added an exciting option that allows you to take our examinations from your own home.

As a candidate for the fall 2020 administrations of the Certification Examination in Family Medicine in October or the Examination of Added Competence in Emergency Medicine in September, you will have the option of scheduling to take your test at either:

- One of the regional Prometric testing centres across Canada
- Your own home using Prometric's remote proctoring platform, ProProctor

As in previous examinations with Prometric, you will still be able to select your preferred date and time from the options offered.

More detailed information—including the minimal technical requirements and how to check if your personal computer system is appropriate before selecting this location option—will be sent to you over the next few months.

Sincerely,

Nancy Fowler, MD, CCFP, FCFP
Executive Director
Academic Family Medicine

Brent Kvern, MD, CCFP, FCFP
Director, Certification, Assessment, and Examinations

Distribution:

Exam candidates
FMRAC and Canadian medical regulatory authorities
Board of Examinations and Certification
Section of Residents Council
Resident Doctors of Canada
Collège des médecins du Québec
Fédération des médecins résidents du Québec
Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada
Medical Council of Canada
Family medicine program directors and emergency medicine program directors
Family medicine chairs
Academic Family Medicine directors